LIS501: What it isn't

- This is a required course for the MS degree in LIS.
- But the course is not an introduction to LIS as a whole or to the profession of librarianship.
- If we're going to require a course, why don't we make it an introduction to professional practice?

LIS501: What it is

LIS501 is an introduction to fundamentals of information organization and access from an LIS point of view. That means we'll examine topics such as:

- ▶ how information is expressed and structured,

- ▶ how people try to resolve information problems, and
- ▶ attempts to reform the former, in the interests of improving the latter.

A general introduction to librarianship

- If such a course were possible, we would be teaching it.
